

January 21, 2010

Dear Parents,

Next week mid-term progress reports will be coming home in the Thursday envelopes. This will give you an opportunity to see how well your child is doing thus far in this trimester.

Catholic School's week begins on Sunday, January 31st. Our theme this year is, Dividends for Life. Take a moment to look at the Thursday Notes for the scheduled events for the week. We hope that all students attending Mass on Sunday, January 31st will wear their uniforms so that the parishioners will be able to identify our Catholic school students. We will end the celebration at an all school Mass on Friday, February 5^h. Please join us if you can.

Our director, Pug Bujeaud is working with the students to block our Shakespeare play. So many of the students are still working on learning the lines. Please continue to help them as they are expected to have all their lines memorized by February 14th.

If your child has not completed the Science project, I would suggest that it be completed soon. Remember, the Science Fair projects and research papers are both due March 12th. There will be no exceptions to this deadline as these are long-range projects that should be finished.

Finally, we are beginning to make final arrangements for our Ashland Oregon Shakespeare Festival trip. We will leave Wednesday June 16th and return Saturday, June 19th. If your child will not be going, please let me know by Wednesday, January 27th. Also, please return the permission slip in today's Thursday notes envelope by Wednesday, as well.

Peace in Christ,

Mrs. Albert
